The other two women are also members of the chapter. Next to Mrs. Marcoux is Mrs. B.F. Konopack, of Lockport, a past regent, and at the left is Mrs. Herbert Folkers, of Frankfort.

How Mokena Schools Are Teaching Johnny To Read

By Elaine Grant, first grade teacher, and James R. Ennis, superintendent

The Mokena board of education expresses in its "Policies and Procedures - Rules and Regulations", the following general educational philosophy.

"The main business of the school is teaching. All other services of the schools such as administration, buildings, grounds, building maintenance, are important only as they contribute to better teaching.

"It is the objective of the board of education and the administration to provide the best possible chance for every child in our district to become: one who understands well what he reads; one who understands well what he hears; one who can express his ideas clearly to others in writing; one who can express his ideas clearly to others in talking; one who is well equipped with the other fundamentals of a well-rounded education; arithmetic, history, geography, music and the sciences; one who has robust health as a result of sound physical, education and health services; one who is well-prepared for his next stage of formal education....."

It is with this philosophy in mind that the following reading curriculum is being followed by the teachers of Mokena to teach the pupils how to read, independently developing fundamental language understandings and word-attack skills.

Grades 1-5 use Scott Foresman Basic Reading Program in Action. Thruout all levels the basic reading program helps the children develop functional understandings of the way in which language expresses meaning and of the relationships between spoken and printed language.

The Phonetic Keys to Reading approach is being used in the first grade rooms for the first time this year. It is as its name implies, a phonetic approach to the teaching of reading. During the first eight weeks of school, the children are given systematic training in letters and their sounds along with a few of the basic phonetic principles. Thus, before the children begin actual reading, they are given many necessary skills and practice in attacking simple words independently. Being able to analyze and decipher words independently is one of the main goals of the phonetic approach in contrast to a merely "sight" method in which the children memorize words used in their readers. During the first eight weeks the long and short vowels, consonants, and some consonant blends are taught. Most of their auditory training is done orally by the teacher and pupils. In a typical lesson, a review of many previously taught sounds precede the new lesson. The new word is then introduced. The children say the sound several times, give words containing the sound, and locate large colorful pictures containing the sound from a wall chart. After the children are familiar with the sound in isolation and can produce it, they must then be given a great deal of practice in auditory recognition of the sound in words.

In a few weeks, the children will be ready to begin actual reading in their pre-primer. And because of the phonetic training they have received and will continue to improve upon, the pupils will immediately be applying their knowledge of letters and phonetic principles. This is when the advantages of the "Phonetic Keys to Reading" will become most evident as the children will be able to sound out words and read more independently.

One of our third grade rooms will soon begin using an SRA Reading Laboratory. The Scientific Research Associates reading laboratory offers a multilevel, individualized developmental program of basic reading instruction. It is designed to offer individualized reading instruction to pupils in their regular classroom under the direction of their regular classroom teacher. The SRA authors say that it is in keeping with our needs in education to day, a "belt-tightening" program aimed at demanding and getting each individual's top performance, developmentally, and with due regard for individual differences.

The Reading Laboratory will help the teacher to start each pupil where he is and then allow him to move ahead as fast and as far as his learning rate and capacity will allow.

The sixth grades are using a reader published by Ginn & Co. This reader uses nearly the same approach to reading as Scott-Foreman, except that the stories seem to be more interesting to the pupils. The seventh grade class is using a special reading text published by Scott-Foreman Co. titled "Wide, Wide World". Once again, the stories are at a high interest level. The eighth grade classes are using a reading text published by Harcourt, Brace, World, and it too has been keyed toward high interest level.

Broken Wheel Derails Four Cars On Train

A broken wheel caused the derailment of three cars and the caboose on an east bound local freight train on the Wabash railroad near the Marley road crossing just north of New Lenox Sunday afternoon.

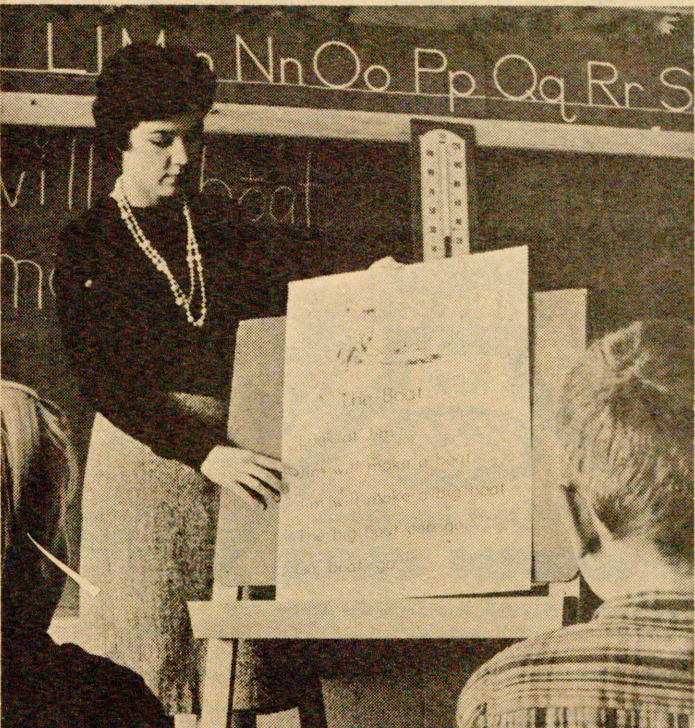

The conductor was shaken up a bit but no injuries were reported. Wrecking crews worked for more than 11 hours to restore traffic. The Wabash is a single line railroad and it had to use other roads until the break in the rails was repaired.

Burglars Fail In Cash Hunt

Burglars broke into the building housing the offices of Drs. D.F. Hoffman and R.L. Kleinhoffer at New Lenox sometime Sunday night or early Monday morning.

A window was broken with a small sledge hammer and a steel file cabinet, which apparently the burglars apparently believed contained money, was dragged out of doors. There the cabinet was opened and its contents--mostly patients bills--strewn about.

There was no money in the cabinet. Nothing else was disturbed.

READING LESSON -- This is one of the methods used in the Mokena public schools to teach Johnny or Joanie -- as the case may be -- how to read. The teacher here is Mrs. George Grant, who teaches first grade. At the top of the blackboard is a part of the alphabet in 1/2 capitals and small letters. The alphabet plays an important part in teaching reading in the Mokena school.

HERE'S A GROUP for you that appeared in the Halloween celebration at New Lenox. Just who they are is a question we are unable to answer. Sorry.

Republicans Lose to Trizna and Waldvogel

In a record breaking off-year vote of approximately 66,000, Will county Republicans lost two major offices, sheriff and treasurer in the general election on Tuesday.

Joseph Trizna, former chief of police of Joliet, topped the Democratic ballot with his 35,768 votes, smothering his Republican opponent, Roy C. Doerfler, former sheriff and currently county treasurer. Doerfler polled 29,158 votes, which gave Trizna a plurality of 6,610, in the unofficial returns.

Trizna, who served on the Joliet police force 29 years, will be the first Democrat to hold the office of sheriff since 1934 when the late Michael Breen was elected.

Chosen as treasurer for the next four years is J. Leo Waldvogel, assistant cashier at the National Bank of Joliet. He defeated James C. Bell, who formerly held the office of county treasurer and more recently served as a Joliet city councilman. Waldvogel's vote was 32,427 to Bell's 31,425, for a plurality of 1,002.

The other county offices at stake in Tuesday's elections were retained by the Republicans.

Closest of these races was won by Clara Hartley Woodard current chief deputy of her father Joseph H. Hartley, who has served Will county as county clerk for many years.

Mrs. Woodard, the first woman to win a county office here, was trailing her Democratic opponent, John J. Houlihan, of Park Forest until the last few precincts came in that sent her ahead to remain in that position at the finish. She won by a plurality of 771, having a total unofficial total of 32,581 to Houlihan's 31,810. This is the second time

Houlihan, a disabled war veteran, has lost a close race for a Will county office. Two years ago he lost out to Elmer Swansbro, of Joliet, for circuit clerk by around 200 votes.

Ellsworth B. Workman, Republican, was re-elected clerk of the probate court, defeating Eugene F. Duff by a plurality of 1,435. Workman's total was 32,414; Duff polled 30,979 votes.

This was another dingdong battle that remained close all the while the returns were coming in.

County Judge John C. Cowing trailed for a short time early in the evening but by the time 30 precincts had reported he had pulled up even with Angelos F. Pistilli, Democrat, and then went ahead to stay in front the rest of the way.

Cowing polled 34,177 votes to Pistilli's 30,207, to give him a plurality of 3,970.

Probate Judge Stewart C.

Hutchison, Republican, overcame a lead that, at one time was in excess of 2,100 in favor of Ray Harvey, Joliet attorney, and then came on to win with 2,787 votes to spare.

Hutchison's total was 33,676; Harvey polled 30,889 votes.

Verne E. Crackel, county superintendent of schools and always a popular figure with the voters topped the Republican ticket with a total of 35,215. His Democrat adversary, Bruce B. Cheadle, of Lockport, polled 28,911 votes, thus giving Crackel a plurality of 6,304.

Green Garden, Frankfort, New Lenox and Homer townships went Republican as usual, as did other country towns in the eastern part of the county but even there the Democrats showed new strength and political observers pointed out yesterday that Tuesday's election served notice on the Republicans that they will have to work hard if they continue to keep the county in the G.O.P. ranks.

C.D. to Demonstrate Siren

The Mokena civil defense unit will demonstrate the signals of the new siren above the village hall on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 11, at 2 p.m.

The first demonstration will be the use of the siren to signal fires - and up and down wailing effect.

For an alert in event of an enemy attack the siren will sound a solid blast for three to five minutes.

For a take cover alert, there will be a wailing sound but of a different pitch than that used to signal fires.

The same signal will be used to give an alert in the event of an approaching tornado.

Zoning And Alley Problems Confront Frankfort Board

Controversial subjects marked the meeting of the Frankfort village board this week.

At the formal request of Ora Andrews and John Weitenfend the board voted to open the alley back of their properties.

The request of Warning Chevrolet to convert the west end of its building into an auto body shop was debated before the board for more than two hours, with no action taken other than to table the matter until the next meeting, Nov. 19.

It is possible, the trustees conceded, that they may have picked up a law suit in resolving the alley question but they were unanimous in their final decision.

"This may not be a popular move as far as several people are concerned," Mayor George Sangmeister said, before the vote, "but if some of the people involved insist that the alley be opened we must recognize they have rights too and their requests should receive attention." The Herschbach family which is quite prominent in the history of Frankfort have property in this block and several months ago a daughter, Mrs. Laurence Woodman, objected to move to open the alley. Most of the people wanted it kept closed, she said, then, and the part that should have been alley looked just part of the yards. Walter O. Herschbach, a Joliet attorney, and a brother of Mrs. Woodman, appeared before the Frankfort village board on that occasion and warned that if the alley were opened the village would find itself in a law suit.

He declared that the alley, though platted had not been used for so long that the public had forfeited any rights to have it opened and he cited various authorities to support his position, which, Village Attorney Albert H. Krusemark, conceded was a strong one.

At Monday night's meeting of the board Weitenfend declared ed that he had always wanted the alley open, despite assertions by others to the contrary, and he wanted it opened now. Mr. Andrews was also insistent that the alley be finally put to use.

As it stood the alley was neither closed, nor open but the village did and does have a 16-foot easement to look after its utilities there. That is the width of the alley -- 16 feet. On a motion by Trustee Milton Subbert and seconded by Trustee Clyde Reils, the board voted to make an alley of the alley.

It was also Trustee Subbert that moved to have the discussion of the body shop proposal terminated until the next session of the board. On that vote all of the trustees were in accord except Wayne DePorto who declined to vote. DePorto was in favor of taking action Monday night and indicated he was in favor of granting the permit.

The Warnings, Stanley and Glenn -- the latter a former member of the village board -- were represented at the council session by Attorney August Santoro. He said he was there to ask and press for a building permit to enable his clients to remodel the exterior and interior of the west end of their building at Kansas and Hickory streets and convert that portion into an automobile body shop.

Village Clerk Walter Pfaff, who as a property owner householder across the street from the garage has a personal interest in the uses of that property, said that had the application for a permit simply stated that the Warnings intended to enlarge or remodel the garage he would have issued the permit forthwith but when they said it was for a body shop the thought came to him that perhaps this proposed new use of the property was not covered by its present zoning classification and so he referred the case to Building Inspector Clerk Bennett. Pfaff said he had no objection to the operation of a body shop if he could be assured that the noise and the use of welding equipment would not effect his peace or TV reception. "I know," he declared, "that if I don't raise these points now and wait until later it would be thrown back at me with the question of why didn't I speak up at the beginning."

Attorney Santoro said he was certain there was no need for re-zoning, that the property was B-1 and that B-1 provided for the operation of garages. The term garage, he pointed out, was defined in the ordinance as a place for the repair and equipment of automobiles and auto repairs were defined to include body and fender work. Therefore, he contended, Warning Chevrolet, meets all the requirements set forth in the zoning ordinance and should be granted a building permit forthwith.

Village Attorney Krusemark said he would have to study the case more before arriving at an opinion but he believed that the restrictions set up under I-1 (light industry) would certainly apply to a B-1 classification, since it is a higher one. Under I-1 adjacent property owners are protected against noise and objectionable odors.

He pointed out, however, that the village board is not required to fight any legal battles covering zoning violations of this nature. If anyone wants to take action under the code he can, Krusemark said, but as his own expense and not the village's.

Several of the trustees said they have been assured by the Warnings that there would be no exception noise nor any welding process used which would interfere with TV nor would they park wrecks in the street for more than a few hours as a time.

The argument probably would have lasted much longer than 11:15 had not Subbert voted to table it until the next meeting.

Will Show Scale Model Of Ancient Tabernacle

An unusual presentation and demonstration will be featured at St. John's Women's Guild, Thursday, Nov. 15 when the Rev. Walther A. Eissfeldt, protestant chaplain at Stateville - Joliet prisons, will set up before his audience an actual scale model of the original Tabernacle Temple of Moses, demonstrate the original institutions of Israel worship, feast and sacrifices and what these prefigured.

Chaplain Eissfeldt built his model 60 years ago while a missionary in northwestern Canada in order to give his members, especially the young people a ready clear picture of what this "great grandparent" of all subsequent religious structure was really like and how it was used. Many otherwise well-instructed church members think it was just some sort of flimsy "tent" whereas it was made of solid material like accosia planks, solid silver foundation blocks, furniture of bronze and gold and rich heavy tapestries etc. It served Israel for 500 years and ever since then remained the original pattern for all subsequent temples les embodying all religious symbolism in the rest of the bible as even still used in our 20th century sacrauries, he said.

The purpose of it's presentation today is to demonstrate visually Old Testament worship which consisted not in a "worded" service but rather a silent "drama" enacted by a priesthood with sacrificial animals, cereals, fire and incense. Small scale models of these principals and accessories the lecture will move about as "puppets" enacting the service, making the lecture something to see and not only to be heard. Chaplain Eissfeldt has been giving his unique lecture to enthusiastic church groups, schools and colleges for about thirty years in both Canada and the eastern and midwest states.

The Women's Guild invites any and all interested persons to attend this unusual lecture at 2 p.m. Nov. 15 in the social room in the basement of St. John's Church.

Mrs. Rudolph Englehardt, program chairman has made arrangements for this unique presentation.

Parents are asked to pick up and discharge their children on the east side of South Cedar, between Haven and First Avenues. The buses will load and unload children inside the school yard on the north side of the building. The north gate will be used for buses only.

"The Gondoliers" Opens At LWHS Friday Night

The melody and rollicking gaiety, that have made the light operas of Gilbert and Sullivan, favorites of many generations, have been brought to Lincoln-Way residents annually by the music students of the high school under the direction of Tom Olson, who has charge of the vocal department.

This year the school singers will present "The Gondoliers," the last production of the famous G. & S. team, and believed by many to be their best, although not so well known as some of their works. Performances will be given Friday and Saturday nights, Nov. 9 and 10.

Gilbert and Sullivan productions combine gay lyrics with wit and satire in the book that poke fun at anything and everything—especially anything in the stuffed shirt category.

"The Gondoliers" is no exception and royalty and the peerage get some expert needling.

The story is standard in the light opera and musical comedy field. The daughter of a duke and the heir to the throne of Barataria, one of those Never-Never kingdoms, are wed when they are infants. The prince is stolen and so 20 years later when the throne becomes vacant.

as he reasons there are many worse jobs than being father-in-law of a king.

The missing prince is supposed to be one of two gondoliers who, to complicate matters, have just been married. The man who stole the prince can't remember he is so both are taken to Barataria and take turns at ruling the country until an old nurse can be located and brought to the capital to make identification. The duke's daughter, Casilda, adds to the complications by being in love with Lusi, her father's drummer.

There is no necessity for going on with the plot. Anyone can take it from here and reach the proper ending.

The part of the duke is taken by Charles Johnson, of Frankfort, and the favorite patter song of the piece, sung by the duke and his duchess (Sandra Kooyenga, New Lenox) will surprise those who think that selling testimonials for clothing or food or accepting fees for directing social climbers and introducing shady characters into high society are modern rack-ets.

Tom Fee of Mokena, has the part of Luis. The two gondoliers, Marco and Giuseppe, are played by Richard Osmus and Peter Burns, both of Frankfort.

Francis Klinger, of Mokena, will have the part of Casilda in the Saturday performance while Judy Owen, of New Lenox, will sing the role on Friday.

Mike Hart, of New Lenox, is the grand inquisitor, who had the infant prince stolen.

"Back-to-School Night" Is Popular With Parents

An exceptionally large number of parents of Lincoln-Way High School students attended the annual Parent-Teacher "Back to School Night" held last night.

This program is planned each year to enable the parents to go thru their child's daily schedule of classes, to meet teachers, and to have an opportunity to learn the course of study requirements in each class.

Meeting for a period of ten minutes in each class, the parents had a three-minute passing period and discovered that it takes some traveling to get from one end of the building to a classroom at another end. During the lunch hour time - either 4th or 5th period - on the student's schedule, the parents met in the All Purpose Room where they heard a report on the proposal being made to provide an addition to Lincoln-Way. John Porick, P.T.C. president, presided at these sessions. Ray Stuermer, of the architect firm of Childs and Smith, was on hand to explain to the parents what will be included in this next addition and how these additional facilities will meet the needs created by projected enrollment increases in the coming five years at Lincoln-Way.

Way.

During the course of the evening, the parents also had an opportunity to see how crowded the halls and classes were with just the number of parents attending "Back to School Night". They could well visualize what the present situation is with the near 1,000 student enrollment this year at Lincoln-Way.

Members of the Future Teachers Association served refreshments to the parents and teachers.

Will Discuss Community Planning

Community planning will be discussed at the next meeting of the New Lenox Association of Commerce which is to be held next Tuesday noon (Nov. 13) in the downstairs dining room at Bruns restaurant.

John Baskerville, program chairman, announced that the speakers next Tuesday will be Barton Juell and William Strickland, of the Northern Illinois Gas Co. Mr. Juell is the district manager.

NI-Gas has host recently at a meeting in Joliet which was attended by representatives from surrounding communities. At this meeting the importance of community planning was stressed. In the face of the growth the area may expect in the next few years it was pointed out that communities must be ready for it if they are to benefit.

Communities that are unable to attract light industry and other business to provide local employment, planners have said, will become forlorn towns.

Lincoln-Way High School Expansion

In all likelihood there will be bond referendum in the Lincoln-Way high school district sometime this winter.

Parents and others interested in having adequate class space to meet the growing enrollment have been carrying on a campaign in the district and so far have obtained more than a thousand signatures to a petition asking the high school board to call a bond election.

More signatures are being sought as those in charge hope to have at least two thousand persons agree to give staunch support to the proposal.

The move for another bond election is coming from the people. The high school board had initiated the original move for a bond issue last spring. It was defeated. As soon as it legally could the board set another election date. Again the issue was defeated.

The need for the bonds to finance an addition to the school is as great now as it was originally but after the proposal was turned down the second time the board, quite wisely we believe, decided that another referendum on the issue would have to come at the request of the people.

At the time of the first two elections many of those who voted against the bond issue explained that they did so in retaliation for the board having involved the district in the proposed formation of a junior college district made up otherwise of Cook county territory.

The junior college program was voted down, in Cook county as well as Will county and in urban areas as well as rural sections.

With the junior college program out of the picture the proposed bond issue for an addition to the high school should have clear sailing when it comes up again in a referendum.

As of now the sentiment found in New Lenox, where the bond issue suffered a severe drubbing last the last time out, it is reported, appears to be quite favorable for the issue, more favorable there, one should add, than in Mokena and Frankfort.

There is no question but that the addition is needed. The enrollment figures are proof of that. The expected enrollment in September, 1963, is expected to approach the 1,100 mark. The present enrollment is approximately 950 and the school is overcrowded.

Lincoln-Way has another problem -- sufficient funds to meet competition in hiring good teachers. That is a separate problem, however, that is not concerned with nor effected by the building bond issue.

The situation resolves itself into simple terms -- to do the things necessary to keep Lincoln-Way a good school more money is needed: more money means more taxes.

So now the question becomes -- can we afford to have a good high school: can we afford not to have one?

Hints For Homeowners

BY: JAMES FIZZELL, ASSOC. FARM ADVISER
All garden plants and lawns need a little fall care to help them endure the ravages of winter. Most deciduous and evergreen trees and shrubs need plenty of available soil moisture as they go into the winter season. During cool fall weather, bluegrass lawns also need plenty of soil moisture. Most of our area is short of adequate moisture this season so you should apply water artificially where necessary. Dig gladiolus corms as the tops die back or before the ground freezes solid. Let them air-dry on the soil surface for several hours and complete drying in a shady, well-ventilated area. Dust lightly with 5% DDT and store in paper bags in a cool dry place. Protect from freezing.

Dahlias should be dug before a hard freeze. Trim the tops, but be careful not to break off the dormant buds at the base of the stems. Store the root clumps in a perforated plastic bag to prevent excessive drying. Store at a temperature of about 40 to 50 degrees F.

Cut off the stems of peony bushes at the soil line after the plants become dormant. After the ground freezes, a light organic mulch will prevent alternate freezing and thawing.

After the first severe frost, protect tender bush roses with a mound of soil about one foot high. After the ground freezes, cover the mound with a mulch of crushed corn cobs, sawdust or other mulching matter. To keep bush roses from being whipped by wind, cut them down to a height of 15 to 18 inches. Remove climbing roses from the trellis, lay them on the ground and cover with soil. They too can use a mulch.

Remember to mark all garden plants with an appropriate label to keep them from being lost next spring during the clean-up rush.

Rabbits cause serious damage to trees and shrubs by nipping off shoots, branches, leaves and buds and by gnawing and peeling off bark. They feed on these materials, but often remove parts of trees and shrubs without eating them. One rabbit can ruin a home planting during the winter. Damage is most likely to be severe when forage for rabbits is scarce, in late fall, and during winters when there is a deep snow cover. Wherever rabbits are numerous protection against them is necessary in order to establish landscaping plantings.

There are several effective ways of protecting your plants from rabbits. The most common method is to place chicken wire fences around each plant. These fences should be larger in diameter than the spread of the lowest branches of the plants, and should be securely fastened to the ground. They should be high enough so that they will stick up over deep snow.

Chemical rabbit repellents are quite effective particularly on hedge material which is hard to protect with fencing. The commercial preparations are available at garden and hardware stores. Some can be used on evergreen plants and some cannot. Be sure to check the label before you use any of these materials.

The materials can be sprayed on the plants from a tank sprayer or painted on with a brush. It is probably not necessary to treat all the plants in your yard, but plants such as flowering plum, flowering almond, fruit trees and crabapple which are particularly attractive to rabbits should be protected.

Apply the repellent on a day when temperatures are well above freezing and be sure to clean the sprayer thoroughly after using.

On Second Thot

By GLENN F. LOGAN
At one time the magic word for workers was organize, now it is specialize.

Of course, there have been specialists in various fields since the beginning of mankind. We believe this is a fair assumption because from the time when man began to keep records of a sort, one finds reference to those skilled in making tools, or weapons, or the practice of medicine, and it is reasonable to believe that such skills were employed before any history was recorded.

Thruout the ages we have had artists, medicine men, engineers, scholars, mechanics, metal workers, workers of wood and stone, apparel makers, livestock raisers and farmers -- to mention a few.

The do-it-yourselfers also have had their innings too. But today the greatest emphasis is placed on specialization.

There was a time when if a man went to a tailor to get a suit the tailor did everything. He measured the customer, he cut the material and after a couple of fittings proceeded to sew the pieces together and eventually produce coat, vest and pants. They after a final fitting he pressed the suit, wrapped it or boxed it and handed it over to the owner.

No doubt there are tailors today who still do these things but most of them are strictly executives. They greet the customer and to give the transaction a personal touch may hand the box containing the finished garment to the owner but specialists have taken over the other steps. The coat is done here, the vest there, the pants another place and the three don't even meet until they are put in a box for delivery to the customer. Not even meet at the buttonholer's have they a chance to get acquainted.

A couple of weeks ago the TV set at home went out of kilter. There were voices and music but no picture. The TV repairman came out. He frowned at the set. They he set his tool and tube case down. He frowned on the set. Frowned again.

COPTER CARTOON by owen day

"We'll see where we've landed when the sand storm lets up, Byron!"

He slapped the cabinet sharply twice. Nothing happened that hadn't been happening -- namely there was music and some words, a singing commercial. The repairman pursed his lips. "Hm-mm," he said.

Saying hm-mm or even hm-mm with the lips pursed given a deeper tone.

The he grunted as he bent down to open his case. "Looks like she needs a UVW-107 or an XYZ-108."

He produced a tube, fiddled around the chassis' innards, came out with a tube, put in the new one and the set's screen came alive. But the picture was jerky and snowy like one of those movies made about the time of "The Great Train Robbery," or "A Thunderstorm in A Swiss Valley."

"Hm-mm," he said. He didn't purse his lips that time and so produced a lighter tone. He slapped the cabinet again. "Well," he said, in his best set-side manner, a nice blend of video's most famous medics, Drs. Casey and Kildare, when about to inform a patient that his only hope is surgery but his chances of recovery are about 4 to 5 and if he knows a reputable book-maker who will lay him even money he had better grab it and get down as big a bundle as he can -- for the sake of his loved ones, and especially if he is short on insurance, "will, my friend", the repairman declared, "You have antenna trouble."

"Is that serious, doctor? - I mean Ben."

"Well, yes and no," he answered. "Alright," I said, somewhat relieved because his manner had had me really going, "fix it."

He smiled but he shook his head. "That is out of my field," he said, "You will need an antenna man for that. If you like I will be glad to recommend several good men and you can call in one. If you like I will call him and I will be glad to sit in for consultation."

"For one thing," he went on, "when this antenna was put in it wasn't set up high enough. I don't know who put this in but they should have had another section of pipe to raise the stack to the proper height."

"Well, why didn't you?" I asked. "Why didn't I what?"

"Why didn't you put in the other section of pipe when you put up the antenna?"

The Upper Room

Neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! behold, the kingdom of God is within you. (Luke 17:21.)

I observed two men cutting down a tree to be made into lumber. After having felled it, one of the men remarked that it was hard work sawing a tree like that. The other said, "Yes, I know. This tree is quality thru and thru; it is an oak."

The remark -- "quality thru and thru; it is an oak" -- caused me to examine the tree. The close grain of the stump, as well as the soundness of the whole body of the tree, seemed to say, "I am an oak."

As surely as the oak speaks quality to many in the world, the followers of Christ testify to the quality of Christian character. They do this by their attitudes, acts, and words. Jesus said, "The kingdom of God is within you." By association with us, the world should be led to say, "Here are lives of high quality. These persons have been with Christ."

PRAYER: O Lord, or Father, we dedicate ourselves anew to the cause of Christ, our Savior. Remove the blemishes that we may worthily serve Thee among the people of the earth. In the name of Jesus, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven. . . Amen."

Christ helping me, I will try today to better the quality of my life.

Jesus said, "The kingdom of God is within you." By association with us, the world should be led to say, "Here are lives of high quality. These persons have been with Christ."

HOMER NEWS

BY ELIZABETH ANDERSON

Mr. and Mrs. Larry White have returned from a honeymoon in the Smoky Mountains and other southern points, and have moved to their home on Huges Ave., in Fairmont. The couple were married at St. Anne's Chapel, Joliet, on Saturday, Oct. 27. The new Mrs. White is the former Mary Ellen Doyle of Joliet. The groom is the younger son of the Wrey Whites, local Homer contractors, and is one of the firm.

Several pre-nuptial parties and showers were given in honor of Mary Ellen, among them being a shower sponsored by Larry's aunts in the recreation room of Homer Consolidated School on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 14. The hostesses were Mrs. Hattie White, Mrs. Nile White, Mrs. Tracy White and Mrs. Merritt J. Cagwin. Approximately 30 relatives attended.

My Neighbors

Walden entered the summer home of Al Roesler, E. Division St., near Parker, some time last week. Locks were pried from the doors and a refrigerator was taken, according to a report made to the sheriff's office.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cleveland of Lockport are the parents of a girl born Oct. 26 at St. Joseph's hospital. The grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Sendra of 143rd St., and Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Cleveland of 143rd and Creme, both of Homer.

Mrs. Leigh Kropp entertained at a Halloween party Tuesday afternoon, the guests being several small friends of her son, Wesley.

Mrs. John Parker who has been with her daughter in Tuscon, Ariz., for some time, is a guest in the home of her son Roy and family on Creme Rd. Building permits have been recently issued for these new homes in Homer Twp.: a five-room brick to cost $15,000 on the south side of Hickory, east of Cedar; a four-room brick veneer for Earl Sefers on the n.w. corner of Bell and 143rd., to cost $10,000; and a six-room and garage, brick on State St., between 143rd and 4-A, to be erected by Fred G. Abney of Joliet, at a cost of $18,000.

When Otto Konow Sr. returned from a recent fishing trip at Crystal Falls, Mich., he brought home with him a young deer as a pet for his daughter, Lila. The fawn readily ate from a bottle and allowed Miss Lila to pet her; all went well until she was being transferred from the barn to a new cage which had been built for her special benefit, when she broke away and took refuge in a nearby wood-lot on the Marple farm. Since then the fawn has been home once to eat, but evaded the efforts of the Konows to corral her, and again returned to the wood.

Now when food is placed in the woods, it disappears, and tracks show who gets it. Neighbors are planning to surround the field soon in the hope of getting Miss Deer back to her intended quarters.

Nine members of the Way-Side Workers Circle of King's Daughters attended the County Convention at Willow Ave. Presbyterian Church in Joliet Tuesday. They were Mrs. Stanley Cox, Mrs. George Bur-cham, Mrs. F. J. Paddock, Mrs. Don Aspel, Mrs. Robert Shepherd, Sr., Mrs. Reed Burch, Mrs. Wilbur Francis, Mrs. E. A. Cary and Mrs. Ira Anderson.

On Thursday they gave an interesting account of the convention at the monthly meeting of the Circle at Homer Church. Mrs. Aspel reviewed a book, "Beyond Ourselves", by Catherine Marshall, for the day's lesson. There was further discussion of the Bridal Review which the Circle will sponsor on Friday evening, Nov. 16. Mrs. Cox announced that friends of hers, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pent of Chicago, who are soon leaving for the Mission Field, will give an hour of music and talk on Missions at the church on Wednesday evening, Nov. 21.

Mrs. Cox and Mrs. Hollister were appointed to arrange the Circle's Christmas luncheon which will be Dec. 6. Miss Susan Reed was a guest, and became a member of the Circle that day.

Mr. and Mrs. John Loucks, E. Seventh St., have returned from a vacation trip to the Smoky Mountains.

Attending the World Community Day program at Covenant Church in Lockport Friday morning were Mrs. Stanley Cox, Mrs. John White and Mrs. John Hollister. Mrs. Otto Moravec furnished the coffee-cake which was the donation of Homer Church to the Brunch which was held preceding the program.

The Junior High group of Homer Church will hold their next meeting Friday evening, Nov. 9, at the church.

Only Gas cooks food perfectly, then keeps it ready to serve for hours... automatically!

Enjoy the new freedom only a modern gas range gives you with "controlled cooking." No more running to the oven to be sure your roast hasn't over-cooked while you weren't watching it. No more problems with last-minute delays by family or guests that could ruin your carefully planned dinner.

The easiest, most modern way to cook. With "controlled cooking" you just put your food in the oven of your new range... set the cooking temperature and the timer for the number of hours the food is to cook. Then forget it. When the cooking time has elapsed, the oven heat is automatically controlled to hold food at a "keep warm" temperature until you're ready to serve it. No over-cooking... no drying. Rare stays rare, medium stays medium and your food stays warm and flavorful up to four hours!

Modern gas ranges cook best of all. You know gas cooks for less. Now see how much better food tastes with "controlled cooking." Like smokeless broiling, thermostatically controlled top burners and all the other features, only modern gas ranges offer "controlled cooking." Be sure to see the new gas ranges this week at your nearby Northern Illinois Gas Company store or your appliance dealer's.
